TIPS

HUSKY APPLICATION

The HUSKY application process may seem complicated, but with these helpful tips it doesn't have to be!

First, carefully fill out the application.

Be sure to provide all required information! Missing information will delay your application. There is a sheet of instructions inserted in your application. Here are just a few important reminders:

- Check the appropriate box in Section A, indicating whether you want health insurance for only your children or your entire family.
- In Section B, you must give a street address. You cannot give only a P.O. Box. If you are not applying for yourself, you do not need to put your social security number or citizenship status.
- In Section C, list everyone who wants HUSKY (including yourself if you want HUSKY). Anyone over 19 in this section must be the parent of a child applying for HUSKY. Everyone must have a social security number and be a citizen or legal immigrant.
- In Section D, list all other family members who live in the household but do not want HUSKY.
- In Section E, list parents not living in the household. This information must be provided, and parents applying for HUSKY must agree to cooperate with Child Support Services in order to be eligible for HUSKY. However, children can still receive HUSKY even if their parents refuse to cooperate with Child Support. (If you do not want to cooperate because you fear abuse, you can request an exemption).
- In Section F, include the employment income of everyone living in the household. Report the income amount before deductions and list each job separately.
- In Section G, report any other income received by household members. This includes child support, disability, unemployment compensation, and Social Security.
- If your family regularly pays daycare expenses for children or a disabled adult, report this in Section H. You will need a letter from the daycare provider saying how much you pay for daycare.
- If anyone in your family has health insurance, or had health insurance cancelled in the past two months, or has unpaid medical bills/loans, put this information in Section I.
- For those applicants who are not U.S. citizens, provide immigration information in Section J. You do not need to give immigration information about family members that do not want HUSKY.
- Read Section L carefully before signing it.
- KEEP A COPY OF THE APPLICATION FOR YOUR RECORDS
